Ceremonial guards stood tall, honoring them as they entered. Gleaming swords reflected their images as they passed – images of integrity, service and excellence.

They stood before their peers, subordinates and supervisors as a shining example of the best D-M has to offer. They are the 355th Wing's top performers for 2001, announced Saturday.

"All of our award nominees are winners. They represent the spirit and professionalism found within all D-M units," said Col. Paul Schafer, 355th Wing commander. "The reputation of D-M people and their dedication to excellence can be seen in our annual award recipients." The annual award recipients are:

Airman

As the Airman of the Year, Senior Airman Henry Gonzalez, 355th Component Repair

Squadron Aerospace Propulsion journeyman, is called a lead maintainer with a calm, professional demeanor by his supervisors.

Gonzales was selected for the award for countless accomplishments throughout the year including developing innovative methods and working with Air Force Engineering and Technical Services teams.

Gonzales completed his Community College of the Air Force Associate of Applied Science Degree in Aircraft systems and he is presently an Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University student.

The 355th Wing Airman of the Year consistently gives back to the local community as part of the Chapel's Can-Do-Crew, middle school math tutor and youth soccer coach.

First Sergeant

The 355th Wing First Sergeant of the Year is Master Sgt. Crystle Flowers, 355th Communications Squadron. She earned the award through superb leadership and personnel management amidst large unit deployment taskings and is credited with holding the squadron together.

Flowers is recognized by subordinates as a champion of enlisted concerns and a compassionate leader.

Junior Civilian Employee

Lydia Ortiz, 355th Component Repair Squadron commander's secretary, is the wing's top Junior Civilian Employee. Ortiz is recognized as a meticulous manager, ensuring proper processing of countless documents that are vital to the careers of squadron military members.

Ortiz takes the initiative to stay abreast of new software requirements and keeps the squadron's administration functions running smoothly.

Company Grade Officer

1st Lt. Jon Eberlan, 355th Component Repair Squadron Maintenance supervisor, is D-M's Company Grade Officer of the Year. Heralded by supervisors as a brilliant leader, Supporting each other and working together to provide the best programs and services is a goal for all D-M people.

Ideas, suggestions, comments, concerns and kudos are important to make improvements.

The best way to pass along a comment or to get an answer to a concern is to contact the agency chief or functional managers listed here. Still no solution? The Commander's Corner phone line is 228-4747.

An e-mail can also be sent to: 355thWing.CommandersCorner@dm.af.mil.

Callers must leave their name, phone number and a message. They will receive a prompt reply in writing or by telephone. We will honor caller confidentiality, but sometimes we need to contact callers to gather additional information. If a concern is of general interest to the base populace, the response may be published in the Desert Airman. Anonymous calls may not be published.

Time to in-process

In-processing concern: I feel there needs to be an effort to make some improvements in the base in-processing program.

I had a new airman arrive recently with an in-processing date that was 12 days out. That is not efficient use of an important resource.

Maybe increasing the class size or not canceling the in-processing briefings during exercises would eliminate this problem in the future.

Response: During the time period in question, in-processing was delayed because of the Military Personnel Flight's wartime duties during a Phase I Operational Readiness Exercise. With the possibility of a wing UTE day on 28 Jan 02, the MPF rescheduled all of those individuals who were scheduled to in-process on 28 Jan to 30 Jan to avoid last minute complications.

The MPF will continue to provide alternatives to the regular in-processing schedules to accommodate those individuals who need to in-process sooner than scheduled due to duty commitments. During Phase I commitments, the MPF will offer in-processing 3 to 4 times a week to ensure minimum delays in getting the newest members of the "Desert Lightning" Wing off to a great start. If you have any further questions, please contact the MPF Commander at 228-4580.

Who are you?

Identification Concern: I went to the Post Office this morning and there was a woman who told me she was checking ID cards. This woman had no identification—no badge or nametag.

I am glad to show my ID card to someone I know is tasked to do so. I request that ID checkers get nametags or something to identify them.

The troops at the gate are phenomenal—fair, firm, friendly and courteous. We love to come to D-M's FamCamp because of the security it offers us.

All these people need are nametags to address who they are. Hope you can correct the problem.

Response: Thank you for your suggestion concerning nametags for our ID checkers at various facilities around D-M; you raise an excellent point. I've discussed the possibility with the Civilian Personnel Office and they agree it's a good idea to issue nametags to these important personnel. We'll work on making it happen as soon as possible.

Since September 11th, these folks have become a mainstay at many locations to ensure only those with proper identification enter certain facilities. We appreciate your alertness and your dedication to the overall security of D-M.

Furthermore, we're glad that you also recognize the professionalism of the 355th Security Forces Squadron personnel as well as that of our SF augmetees who assist them in checking IDs at the base's entry points.

Our collective security is based on all of Team D-M keeping their eyes and ears open to potential threats and making value-added suggestions such as yours.

Davis-Monthan Unit Public Affairs Representatives

Unit Public Affairs Representatives are the "eyes and ears" of the 355th Wing Public Affairs office. Each squadron has unique individuals that have interesting stories to tell, whether it is about sports, awards, lifesaving acts, IDEA program contributions, etc.

Stories also include units making improvements to the methods or processes that they use or to squadron facilities or community areas via self help projects. UPARs are responsible for getting the information to PA in a usable format and in a timely manner.

The PA staff focuses on issues that effect the base populace in general and UPARs judge the input for newsworthiness or unique human interest appeal before forwarding it to the PA staff.

Public Affairs utilizes UPARs to better tell a squadron's story. UPAR responsibilities include:

- ◆ Provide news ideas as well as write and shoot photos of squadron activities for submission to the base newspaper;
- ◆ Review and solicit Hometown News Release submissions;
- ◆ Review squadron submissions to the base marquee and Commander's Access Channel (COX Communications Channel 75)
- ◆ Seek volunteers for tours and speaking engagements

2002 ACC Heritage Conference

D-M hosts the Air Combat Command Heritage Conference today through Sunday. The conference was created in cooperation with the International Council of Airshows in 1997 to celebrate the Air Force’s 50th anniversary. It allows the public to view vintage warbirds flying alongside modern fighter aircraft. The flying members are civilian pilots approved by ACC to fly with ACC Demonstration Team aircraft throughout the U.S. and Canada at airshows from March through November.

The conference also provides an opportunity for D-M members and their families to see flying operations and witness Air Force history. A viewing area will be set up for D-M members. For more information, visit: www2.acc.af.mil/airdemo.

The F-15 Eagle is an all-weather, extremely maneuverable, tactical fighter designed to permit the Air Force to gain and maintain air superiority in aerial combat.

The Eagle’s air superiority is achieved through a mixture of unprecedented maneuverability and acceleration, range, weapons and avionics. It can penetrate enemy defense and outperform and outfight any current enemy aircraft. The F-15 has electronic systems and weaponry to detect, acquire, track and attack enemy aircraft while operating in friendly or enemy-controlled airspace. The weapons and flight control systems are designed so one person can safely and effectively perform air-to-air combat.

The F-15’s superior maneuverability and acceleration are achieved through high engine thrust-to-weight ratio and low wing loading. Low wing-loading (the ratio of aircraft weight to its wing area) is a vital factor in maneuverability and, combined with the high thrust-to-weight ratio, enables the aircraft to turn tightly without losing airspeed.

Military families not alone when tragedy strikes

(Editor's note: This is part four of a series of stories to help educate D-M's military members and their families about the Air Force programs and agencies dedicated to helping families after the death of a uniformed family member. Comments can be made directly to the Desert Airman at desert.airman@dm.af.mil.)

By 2nd Lt. Becky Warren
355th Wing Public Affairs

When an active duty military member dies, and the next-of-kin have been notified, Casualty Assistance and Mortuary Affairs make appointments to meet with the family. Last week, which was part 3 of the death benefits series, covered the job of Casualty Assistance, and this week the focus is on one of the parts of Mortuary Affairs; the Summary Court Officer.

The Summary Court Officer process is specifically designed to help the next-of-kin through the management procedures necessary to close-out a member's military service obligations. The Summary Court Officer is a commissioned officer appointed by the installation commander to collect, safeguard and dispose of property belonging to the deceased at the time of their death.

Being a Summary Court Officer is one of the most important jobs an officer has in their career. The next-of-kin does not need to spend the time after notification trying to turn in military ID's, or attempting to clean and move clothes or furniture. All of this is taken care of by the Summary Court Officer until every account is finished.

The selection of the Summary Court Officer may be from any base organization, and the Summary Court Officer receives instructions on how to take care of the belongings of the member, as well as get the names and addresses of the authorized recipients from the Mortuary Office.

"Once a Summary Court Officer has been appointed, the Mortuary Office gives the officer a worksheet that details their duties. This is a basic guideline for the Summary Court Officer to follow, but they also need to understand that every situation is different," said 355th Services Commander Lt. Col. Michael Archuleta.

The Summary Court Officer should be removed from all other duties and responsibilities until all actions are complete. The officer needs to establish an active working relationship with the deceased members unit commander, the Mortuary Officer, the Base Staff Judge Advocate, the Casualty Assistance team, and the Legal office.

A military member has papers, personal possessions, and other belongings that could take time to sort through. Sometimes the next-of-kin is not aware of all of the bills,

Stephanie Ritter

The Summary Court Officer is responsible for taking care of personal items, financial accounts and military obligations of a deceased military member.

credit cards, or other financial accounts the member has, so it is the job of the Summary Court Officer to straighten these out.

The Summary Court Officer establishes a Summary Court Journal to maintain a chronological record of all transactions and actions performed during the course of their duties. They also establish a Summary Court File, which includes copies of all correspondence, bills of sale, receipts, and any other documents that pertain to the case.

"Both of these help the Summary Court Officer keep accurate records of what they have completed, as well as what they still have to do," said Archuleta. "They also submit a written progress report on a monthly basis to the Mortuary Officer until the case is completed."

The Summary Court Officer secures, inventories, packages, and ships personal property to the authorized recipient. They also turn in military identification and other military documents and equipment, dispose of mail, personal papers and funds. All of this is done to make sure the member's accounts are properly closed.

"It is important for the officer to remember that every case is different, and the needs of the family should always come first. Even though a Summary Court Officer has guidelines and checklists, they should do their best to meet the needs of the family," said Archuleta.

Finally, the job of a Summary Court Officer is important and time consuming. It is their responsibility to work with the next-of-kin until all of the member's accounts, belongings, and other possessions are correctly taken care of.

Next week, the job of the Family Liaison Officer will be defined, as well as a recap of all of the teams and jobs that play an active part when a military member dies, which will conclude the death benefit series.

Promotions

Common Sense Parenting®

New Book Brings
Help and Confidence to Parents of Toddlers

Confidence. Less conflict. Enjoyment.

That's what author Bridget Barnes believes parents who use the techniques and skills explained in the new book, Common Sense Parenting of Toddlers and Preschoolers, can gain. Those skills have been taught to parents of 2 to 5 year-olds in workshops offered by Girls and Boys Town since 1996 and are now available to any parent through the book just published by Boys Town Press.

When a parent realizes that "I can correct my child, he or she may get upset with me, but the child is still going to love me," the parent gains confidence, according to Barnes. The book shows parents how to stay calm, communicate clearly, set boundaries, have reasonable expectations, give consistent consequences, and teach a young child self-control and other skills.

Parenting toddlers can be a time of high conflict. Many couples are just finding out that they have very different parenting styles — one may see the other as either too lenient or too strict, says Barnes. It may not be an exaggeration, she adds, to say that agreeing to use Common Sense Parenting® techniques "saves marriages." It can lead to a lot less strife.

Parents, according to Barnes, list many of the same problems with their toddlers — acting up at bedtime and meals, throwing temper tantrums, refusing to take "no" for an answer, etc. In dealing with these issues, however, parents also make common mistakes — treating children like "little adults," giving kids choices they're not equipped to make, and setting expectations too high.

Young children, she says, need lots of reminders, assistance, modeling, and patience. The book provides step-by-step information on how to do these things. Also included are answers to dozens of questions frequently asked by parents of toddlers.

Barnes is the mother of two and stepmother of four children and has been a Common Sense Parenting trainer for 13 years.

Common Sense Parenting of Toddlers and Preschoolers is available from the Boys Town Press, 14100 Crawford St., Boys Town, NE 68010, 1-800-282-6657, www.girlsandboystown.org/btpres

D-M Airmen convicted of cocaine use

By 2nd Lt. Sharon F. Ehasz
355th Wing Public Affairs

Ecstasy, cocaine, marijuana.

Just as these substances are a problem in general society, they are a problem within the armed forces.

Recently, two D-M airmen were court-martialed on charges of wrongfully using cocaine. One member received a Bad Conduct Discharge and six months of confinement for two-time use of cocaine. In another case, an airman who was convicted of using cocaine once received six months confinement with administrative discharge still possible. Both members forfeited a portion of their military pay and were reduced in grade to E-1.

Unfortunately, cases of drug use are not all that uncommon in the military. There have been approximately 15 drug-related courts-martial within the last year, five of which were for cocaine use.

A sentence in such a court-martial may include confinement, forfeiture of pay and allowances, reduction in rank, hard labor without confinement, reprimand, restriction to specified limits and a fine, not to mention having a federal conviction on top of a possible Bad Conduct or Dishonorable Discharge.

Article 15 punishment is another alternative for drug-related offenses.

"In addition to the fact that the Air Force is a cross-section of society, which in itself has drug problems, D-M is unique to the Air Force because of two factors – proximity to the border and proximity to a major university," said Capt. Matt Cassell, Military Justice deputy chief.

"Because of the importance of our Air Force mission, we must take a solid front against drug use," said Cassell. D-M has taken this front and is dedicated to fighting this problem.

One way that D-M has done this is through its urinalysis program. "The most prevalent way that people are getting caught is through the urinalysis program. People pop positive when they are randomly tested," said Cassell.

"Others are turned in by fellow drug users."

The Air Force's goal for the urinalysis program is to have 65 percent of the base population randomly tested each year. The program is in place primarily for its deterrent effect, but also to catch those using drugs, punish them and rehabilitate them, if possible.

Commanders have other means for drug testing than just random drug urinalysis. A commander can request squadron sweeps, unit sweeps or can give direct orders for members to be tested if there is probable cause.

"Doing drugs just isn't worth it, plain and simple. Getting caught for drugs can destroy your Air Force career and follow you into the civilian world affecting you for years to come, negatively impacting opportunities that come your way. Why would anyone be willing to pay such a price?" summed Duane Legan, Demand Reduction Program manager.

"Because of the importance of our Air Force mission, we must take a solid front against drug use."

– Capt Matt Cassell

deputy chief

Two ears, one mouth: Part of ingenious plan

By Lt.Col. Thomas Fitch
355th Component Repair Squadron

A lot has been written about what leadership is, how to encourage it among your folks and how to practice it yourself.

Not long ago, I read an article by a sharp young lieutenant who did a nice job of discussing who leaders are and why. Her point was that leaders can be found at all levels. I agree.

My purpose here is to suggest that not only can leaders be found at all levels, but leaders can learn from all levels...if they'll listen. I'm not going to get into the "clinical" definition of leadership or give you a seven-step program that will guarantee success, but I would like to suggest that you think outside the "container" when you are considering who you, as a leader at any level, should be listening to as you serve your nation.

Leaders who want to succeed need to surround themselves with good people, provide those people with the resources they need to do their jobs and then take the risk of actually letting their folks do what they know how to do. Yes, I said take a risk, because you have to trust your people to do their best, and sometimes they will fail. I'm not suggesting a line of sight tasking process that just picks the next available "victim" and hands that person a project. Instead, we need to know our players, point them in the right direction and give them correction if they start to stray too far off the road to success.

How do we get to know our players? We need to listen. From the youngest airman to the most senior chief, we have some of the best and brightest men and women our nation has ever produced wearing the Air Force uniform.

Our NCO and SNCO corps are nothing short of amazing. Their ability to keep incredibly complex, sometimes cantankerous weapons of war ready to go do this nation's business at a moment's notice never ceases to amaze me.

So, when you have a tough issue you need to resolve, from who are you going to get your input? When you show up for your first day of work in a new shop, are you going in like a bull in a china shop? Or, are you going to take the time to listen and learn?

Yes, we have a chain of command, and yes, we get paid to make difficult, sometimes life changing decisions. My point is that we would be wasting a tremendous resource if we didn't find a way to get some input from the airman, the staff sergeant or the chief.

I'll never forget the first Chief Master Sergeant I ever met. I had just arrived at England Air Force Base, La., straight out of Officer Training School and hadn't even been to technical school. I showed up for work and was introduced to my new boss and "The Chief." My boss was an experienced captain who told me I had two ears and one mouth, and suggested I close the latter and use the former. Her advice was good, and it was re-inforced by the chief. He looked like he was from Hollywood's central casting for war movies. He had a lined, weathered face and a voice that sounded like a growl, even when he was in a good mood.

With nearly 30 years of experience under his belt by the time I had the pleasure of meeting him, he had earned the respect of every man and woman in the unit. The chief managed to give me some advice and keep me out of trouble most of the time, and do so without "showing me up" in front of others. I consider myself fortunate to have had the opportunity to work with and learn a great deal from that chief and many others during my career.

There have been times when the lessons have been hard, and times when they came from totally unexpected quarters. But, I think I can honestly say I've been willing to listen and to learn—no matter where the lesson originated. I'm not claiming to have this down pat by any means, and I can't say I've always made the right decision, even when I have been given great advice. I will, however keep doing my best, just like I ask my people to do. I challenge each of you to be willing to take a risk, ask the tough questions, listen to the answers and then do something about it.

"I would add a female-friendly BDU pant for field situations."

Senior Airman Zan Heilman
355th Medical Operations Squadron

"Hats. You wake up having a great Air Force hairday and then bam, gotta put the hat on. Or what about the days you wake up having a bad Air Force day, you forget the darn thing on the counter. Huge dilemma. Do I run for it, do I go back for it, or do I just stay in my car trapped like a prisoner?" (not pictured)

Master Sgt. Betty Boles
355th Medical Support Squadron

"Nametags should be worn on the service dress jacket again. Addressing others by name and rank is the cornerstone of customs and courtesies."

Tech. Sgt. Glen Abbuehl
355th Equipment Maintenance Squadron

"Discontinue the use of hats totally. Besides messing up one's hair, people have trouble wearing them correctly."

Chow hall: long-gone from AF vocabulary, "dining facility" now in vogue

By Senior Master Sgt.
Tim O'Leary
355th Services Squadron

There are many words and phrases we use in day to day military terminology—all with colorful origins. Yet, why is it that Services Squadron members are quick to correct people who say "chow hall" by proudly informing them it's a "dining facility." Chow hall, mess hall, dining facility,...what's the difference?

The chow hall

Just for fun, let's eat in the "chowhall" for one day. It is 0500 AM and raining outside. You can't come inside because the entrance door is locked between serving times. For breakfast, your eggs are going to be fried, unless it is the day of the week scrambled eggs are prepared. There aren't any made-to-order omelets available. Bacon, creamed beef or sausage is served—but never more than one is prepared on any given day.

Lunch consists of one meat entrée, one starch, and one vegetable and, oh yes...one soup. Don't look for the full service snackline with hamburgers and other "signature" sandwiches made-to-order; they are not available in the "chowhall."

Dinner is basically the same. If you come in for midnight chow, make sure you are on duty, in proper uniform and, in most cases, have a meal pass to use since in most cases this is strictly enforced. Expensive and extensive carry out service isn't available in the chowhall.

The atmosphere inside the chow hall is spartan. Decorative carpeting, wall art, paintings, television monitors, chandeliers and plants aren't included.

There are no civilian contractors so you'll have to bus your own table, which includes sliding your folding metal chair up to the table before you leave.

Busing tables isn't too difficult because your tray is sectioned to eliminate the bothersome use of china.

Once you've done all that, you may leave, unless, you've been chosen for "K.P." duty, during which you'll have lots of pots and pans to wash by hand. Don't forget, you'll get to tidy up around the kitchen and clean the grease traps.

Additionally, "K.P." stands for Kitchen Patrol or "keep peeling" – there are hundreds of potatoes to be peeled for upcoming meals.

The dining facility

How times have changed in the Air Force Food Service program. Members of the Services career field are proud to have a "dining facility" versus a "chowhall." The restaurant atmosphere and culinary treats served in Air Force dining facilities today rival many four- and five-star establishments in the local community. Remember, the key word in food service, is "service."

NCO

Tech. Sgt. Bryan Vibert, 355th Security Forces Squadron Investigations NCO in charge, is the 355th Wing NCO of the year. Vibert's selection for the award for aggressively leading the top security forces investigations team in Air Combat Command.

His supervisors credit him with impeccable investigative skills leading to a nearly 100 percent resolution of all drug and larceny cases.

Vibert has trained more than 200 patrolmen on crime scene preservation, initial interview and interrogation techniques and proper law enforcement procedures.

The wing NCO of the Year is nearing completion of a Bachelor's degree in Criminal Justice from Park University with a 3.9 grade point average. He is also Red Cross certified in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and medical response.

He is involved with the Tucson community as a mentor, teaching teen and pre-teen students how to resist social pressures and drug use.

Intermediate Civilian Employee

D-M's Intermediate Civilian Employee of the Year is Betty Handy, 355th Comptroller Squadron financial analyst, is responsible for overseeing operations and maintenance funds for military family housing.

Handy is charged with managing the wing's $87 million flying-hour program budget, helping D-M fly the greatest number of hours in ACC. Her efficiency and professionalism shined through training the education office funds manager and unit resource advisor on new accounting database. She is an active member of her church, serving as a Sunday school teacher and donating time towards feeding Tucson's homeless.

Senior NCO

The 355th Wing Senior NCO of the Year is Senior Master Sgt. Jeffrey Halstead, 355th Mission Support Squadron Family Support superintendent. He earned the award as superintendent, director and acting Wing first sergeant.

Halstead's leadership of Family Support programs directly impacts almost all Davis-Monthan members and their families. Represented D-M programs both on-base and to the local Tucson community through television news interviews. Halstead recently earned his baccalaureate degree in human resources from Park University with a 4.0 grade point average, making the Dean's List every semester. He also completed the rigorous Air Force Joint Command Family Support Superintendent training.

The wing's top senior NCO's community involvement includes service as the vice president of the local Air Force Association Chapter, and he is the most sought after singer of the National Anthem for wing and community events.

Senior Civilian Employee

Marie Hanna, 355th Mission Support Squadron Training and Education Services chief, is the Senior Civilian Employee of the Year. She is credited with restructuring training and education services to support better the wing's upgrade training and education mission, recognized as the most efficient in ACC. She is presently enrolled in Air Command and Staff College and has completed the Air Force Civilian Personnel Management Course. In addition, she has attended suicide intervention training. She is chairperson for Asian Pacific Heritage committee and a charter officer of 355th MSS Booster Club.

ACC Fitness, Sports Challenge

Air Combat Command has developed a sports challenge to replace the annual 3-on-3 basketball tournament. Teams must consist of four men and four women, and will compete in multiple co-ed events that utilize their physical fitness and athletic abilities. Base-level competitions begin today and continue through April 12. First-place teams will represent their base at the ACC competition May 6-10 at Offutt Air Force Base, Neb. For more information, call the fitness center at 228-0738.

LPGA amateur qualifier

The Tucson Parks Foundation, which presents the Welch's/Circle K Championship, will hold the amateur qualifying tournament for the Tucson stop of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour Wednesday at 11:45 a.m. at the Randolph North Golf Course. Amateur golfers interested in qualifying must have a current, verifiable United States Golf Association handicap of 3.4 or less to be eligible. The entry fee is $50 and the deadline to enter is TODAY. Entrants must check in one-half hour prior to tee time. The two low scorers from the amateur qualifier will advance to the LPGA qualifying round held March 18 at Randolph North Golf Course. For more information or to register for this event, please contact Jane Wiedeman at 529-3637. For ticket information for the Welch's / Circle K Championship, please call the Tournament Office at 791-LPGA (5742) or visit the website at www.tucsonlpga.com.

Staff Sgt. Joe Libunao carries the Olympic torch around the track during the Tucson Senior Olympics opening ceremonies Jan. 26.

Young D-M 'veteran' carries Olympic torch

By 2nd Lt. John Leary
355th Communications Squadron

As Joe Libunao carried the Olympic torch around the track stadium Jan. 26, he waved to thousands of screaming fans.

No, Libunao was not in Salt Lake City, Utah for the Olympic Winter Games. He was here in Tucson receiving his own heroes welcome as he participated in the opening ceremony for the Tucson Senior Olympics.

The Tucson Senior Olympics Committee

designed the processions for the opening ceremony to be a commemoration to the United States military. War Veterans from World War II up to the current conflict of Operation Enduring Freedom were asked to assist with the lighting and passing of the torch.

Libunao, a staff sergeant assigned to the 355th Communications Squadron, was chosen to represent Davis-Monthan AFB and the Air Force as the Operation Enduring Freedom veteran.

The 29-year old Libunao admits that it was difficult at first to accept the title of "veteran."

"I almost felt as if I wasn't worthy of being called a veteran," Libunao said. "You tend to think of 'veteran' as a grand title, a veteran as someone who has served in many conflicts and served over a long period of time. You think of someone old and retired. I was thinking, 'I can't be a veteran. I have only eight years of military experience.'"

The University of Arizona track was packed with nearly a thousand people who came out to support Tucson's senior athletes and to pay respect to Tucson's military.

Libunao's wife, Staff Sgt. Angel Libunao, also a member of the 355th Communications Squadron, took photographs and watched as her husband was the first veteran to carry the torch, walking 20 yards in the span of less than a minute before passing the torch to the Operation Desert Storm representative, Lt. Col. Chris Donovan, 41st Electronic Combat Squadron commander.

"I knew my wife was in the stands watching, but I really wasn't too nervous about that," Libunao said. "I didn't think too much about possibly tripping or dropping the torch either. I was more concerned with the flame burning out on me. I really would've panicked in that case."

Libunao returned from Operation Enduring Freedom December 14 of last year, just in time for the birth of his daughter Raven Joelle January 4.

When Raven is in high school and Libunao really is a veteran, (i.e. old and retired), he'll likely tell his daughter the story of the time he carried the Olympic torch.

Squadrons bowl free every Wednesday this month from 4 p.m. until closing. Shoe rental is extra ... reservations are required. Call 228-3461 for more information.

Varsity softball tryouts

Movies

Movies begin at 7 p.m. unless otherwise noted. Admission is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12 and senior citizens. For the theater movie recording, call 748-1157.

Friday

Imposter (PG-13)
1 hour, 35 minutes

The year is 2079. The earth has been at war with an alien force for over a decade. Spencer Olham is a government scientist whose latest work promises to save the planet. But suddenly he is accused of being an alien spy, and becomes the subject of a nationwide manhunt. Olham is faced with a two-tiered dilemma- can he prove his identity to the secret police in time to help mankind? Can he ultimately prove his identity to himself?

Saturday

Kate And Leopold (PG-13)
2 hours, 1 minute

Meg Ryan plays Kate McKay, a modern-day executive. Hugh Jackman plays Leopold, the charming Third Duke of Albany in the 19th century. Each has grown weary of waiting for love. But when a dramatic twist of fate lands Leopold in present-day New York, they must confront the prospect of a love affair 100 years in the making.

Sunday

The Royal Tenenbaums (R)
1 hour, 49 minutes

Royal Tenenbaum and his wife Etheline seperated after having three children. After starting successful careers, virtually all memory of the brilliance of the young Tenenbuams was subsequently erased by two decades of betrayal and disaster. Most of this was generally considered to be their father's fault. During a recent winter, the family has a sudden, unexpected reunion.

Community Activities

Red Cross Blood Drive

The Red Cross Bloodmobile is at the D-M Medical Treatment facility March 12 from 7:30 to 10 a.m. Red Cross has a critical need for blood so anyone who can donate is strongly encouraged to do so. For more information or reservations, call Airman 1st Class Randy Smith at 228-2886.

SINCE 1979, MEETING THE NEEDS OF CHILDREN IN AMERICA AND AROUND THE WORLD

...with love.

It takes more than food to give a child self respect and hope. It takes the compassionate hands of love providing both food for the body and food for the inner spirit. For over 2 decades we have been committed to one mission... feeding children with help and hope. It's the kind of feeding we do best!

Last year we distributed more than 97 million pounds of food and other essential commodities. Supplemented 869,446 meals every day.

Thank you for being a friend of the children and Feed The Children. You're investing in the future of our society... our children.

Aerospace & Arizona Days 2002

Davis-Monthan AFB • April 27 - 28, 2002

“Service For Freedom”

D-M officials expect thousands of eyes to look to the Tucson skies April 27-28 for Aerospace & Arizona Days 2002.

The two-day airshow will feature numerous military and civilian aerial demonstrations and one of the largest displays of static aircraft from across the United States. This year's feature demonstration will be a Combat Search and Rescue pickup accomplished by our very own A/OA-10 aircraft and the 305th Rescue Squadron rescue helicopters. Several demonstration aircraft from the Air Force, Navy, Army, and Marines are expected.

Air Show Program

As a business owner, you can show your support and reach out to a very large captive audience by placing your ad in the air show program.

This special edition will be inserted into the Desert Airman, official base newspaper for Davis-Monthan AFB. It will also be available in high traffic locations in Tucson prior to the show, and made available to the public attending the two-day event.
